LEADERSHIP DAY

Leadership in a world of interconnected and complex risks

Risk management can co-ordinate all the skills required to understand and make sure that governance creates healthy leadership in an organisation, said Brigitte Bouquot, President of AMRAE and Director of Insurance and Risk Management for Thales. She commended FERMA for taking the initiative in publishing its recommendations for cyber risk governance.

Jochen Menges from the Judge Business School at Cambridge University had begun the plenary discussion on leadership in a world of interconnected and complex risks by pointing out the value and the risk of charismatic leaders.

OTHER SESSIONS

Leadership Lunch Who is driving the bus: it's a partnership

The theme of leadership continued into lunch with a discussion between a risk manager, an insurer and a broker, moderated by FERMA board member Dirk Wegener, Vice President of FERMA and Global Head of Corporate Insurance for Deutsche Bank.

Breaking bad – rethinking the insurance proposition for large corporations

The workshop was mainly interested in large multinationals who are concerned with the volatility of their future cash-flows which are key to their market valuation.

The 4th industrial revolution, a blessing or a curse?

We are in the middle of the 4th industrial revolution, as Sabrina Hartusch, President of SIRM and Global Head of Insurance for Triumph International Holding pointed out, and it is touching all of our lives and our careers.
